Introduction

Provide a concise yet comprehensive introduction to the topic. At SIMET, we have specialists from many different disciplines, so it is essential to provide an introduction that is accessible to the widest possible audience.

Materials and Methods

Briefly describe the study design, the number of subjects and/or samples collected, the duration of the study, and the methods and analyses carried out.

Results

Highlight the key findings, emphasising their scientific innovation and/or significance.

Discussion and Conclusions

Critically discuss the results obtained in relation to the study's potential and limitations. Compare the results with the Italian and/or international context. Conclude with a brief summary.
